

Dear _____,

Being a student at Cumorah Academy has changed me, and I want to continue that growth. Now that I'm home, I intend to implement the skills and practices I've learned at Cumorah Academy.

As part of my personal and professional development, I have been encouraged to seek guidance from individuals whose lives reflect purpose, integrity, and a commitment to growth—qualities I deeply admire in you.

Thank you for agreeing to be my personal mentor.

I am striving to live and develop according to principles such as faith, intentional growth, service, leadership, and lifelong learning. I am especially focused on _____.

I believe that learning from someone with your experience and perspective would be invaluable in helping me stay accountable and continue progressing in these areas.

I envision our mentorship as a simple, respectful relationship – with occasional conversations (in person, by phone or online), where I could seek your advice, share my progress, and learn from your experiences. I want to be mindful of your time and ensure that any interaction is meaningful and worthwhile.

Thank you for the example you set. I look forward to learning from you.

Yours sincerely,

Student

Qualities of a Good Personal Mentor

- Active Listener: Spends more time listening than talking.
- Supportive & Empathetic: Believes in your potential and understands the challenges you face.
- Honest & Direct: Provides helpful feedback, not just praise.
- Accountable: Follows through on commitments and keeps in touch.
- Well-Connected: Can potentially introduce you to relevant people or resources.